Brent Cross Cricklewood Transformation Update

Have your say on the future of Clitterhouse Playing Fields in our public consultation

Clitterhouse Playing Fields is at the heart of our vision for Brent Cross Town, and we need your help to make it one of north London's most significant public parks.

A public consultation has been launched on the future of this 44-acre green space, which is the equivalent size of 22 football pitches. The goal is to provide a wide variety of new sports and play facilities that are accessible to everyone, as well as clear and safe walking routes throughout. But that requires you telling us what you want, as we reinvent it as an area where people can relax and enjoy green spaces, grab a coffee, and meet with friends.

Brent Cross Town's first public artwork

This is the first public artwork in Brent Cross Town, a mural which mixes colour, inclusion, local history, and community spirit.

Designed by artist Annu Kilpeläinen, it pays homage to 19th century local botanist William Cattley. Local people were asked what they wanted before the work was commissioned.

The mural covers the gable wall on the parade of shops on Claremont Way. You can read the full story, including a video of the artwork being installed, here.

Become an apprentice groundworker

Are you a young person who wants to help build a new park town in north London, or do you know someone who is? Because a new role has been created which could be perfect.

Our partner Galldris is advertising an 18-month apprenticeship as a groundworker on Brent Cross Town. Galldris and a training provider will offer the candidate the training required and the qualification of a CSCS card.

Join the team at our Visitor Pavilion

Four jobs are also being advertised at Brent Cross Town's Visitor Pavilion and Welcome Hub which will both open next month.

We are looking for a general manager, plus three welcome hosts who will be either part-time or full-time. You will be the public face of the development, meeting everyone from local school and community groups, to visiting professionals, clients, stakeholders and colleagues.

Junction works project nearly complete

Our highways improvements are nearly complete at the A5 Cricklewood Broadway junction with Cricklewood Lane and Chichele Road.

Over the last 12 months we have demolished the four-storey building at the corner of Cricklewood Lane and Cricklewood Broadway, widened and realigned the junction with Chichele Road, modernised the signals, renovated the footways, and installed new pedestrian crossings.
